On February 6, 2020, Forsage became the first multi-level marketing network to use smart contracts on the Ethereum blockchain. This has led to the creation of a true 100% decentralized crowdfund matrix platform.

The platform allows anyone to work from home because they simply have to use lead generation and marketing strategies to encourage others to sign up. Forsage only requires a small initial crypto investment equivalent to around $12, so it's open to everyone.

Forsage works with a referral program to acquire new investors. When a prospect first enters the platform, they get two matrix system entries. One is in 3x1 (Forsage x3) and one is on a 2x2 (Forsage x4).

Each blank spot on the matrix represents a space for another investor to fill. When the lead encourages more investors to buy in and fill those spots, the principal investor gets their commission and the cycle resets. Each of these options has 12 levels and users pay a small fee to climb.

Forsage works using the blockchain in order to maintain transparency. It's designed to be within reach of anyone, and represents a simple and effective way to earn passive income.

Forsage smart contracts offer a policy of zero risk factors and instant peer-to-over payments. Because they're based on the blockchain, they are fully transparent and secure for added peace of mind.

The newly launched guide states: "Forsage compensation plan goes from the initial fee to the commission earned after the matrix is complete. Forsage offers work at the home model in which earnings are described as a passive income due to its referral nature. The compensation depends on the type of matrix used and the level in which the investor decides to make his contract."

Anyone can join the community and get involved in the unique opportunity for home-based income powered by blockchain technology.
